

Jesus sends Out his Disciples

(Based on Mark 6:6-13, Matthew 9:35 to 11:1, Luke 9:1-6, Luke 10:1-24)

Copyright © 2007 Patricia Loranger

Jesus saw the crowds and he loved them. They were stressed-out and scattered like sheep without a shepherd. "There is such a big harvest but there are hardly any workers. Pray to the boss of the harvest that he would send workers to his field," said Jesus.

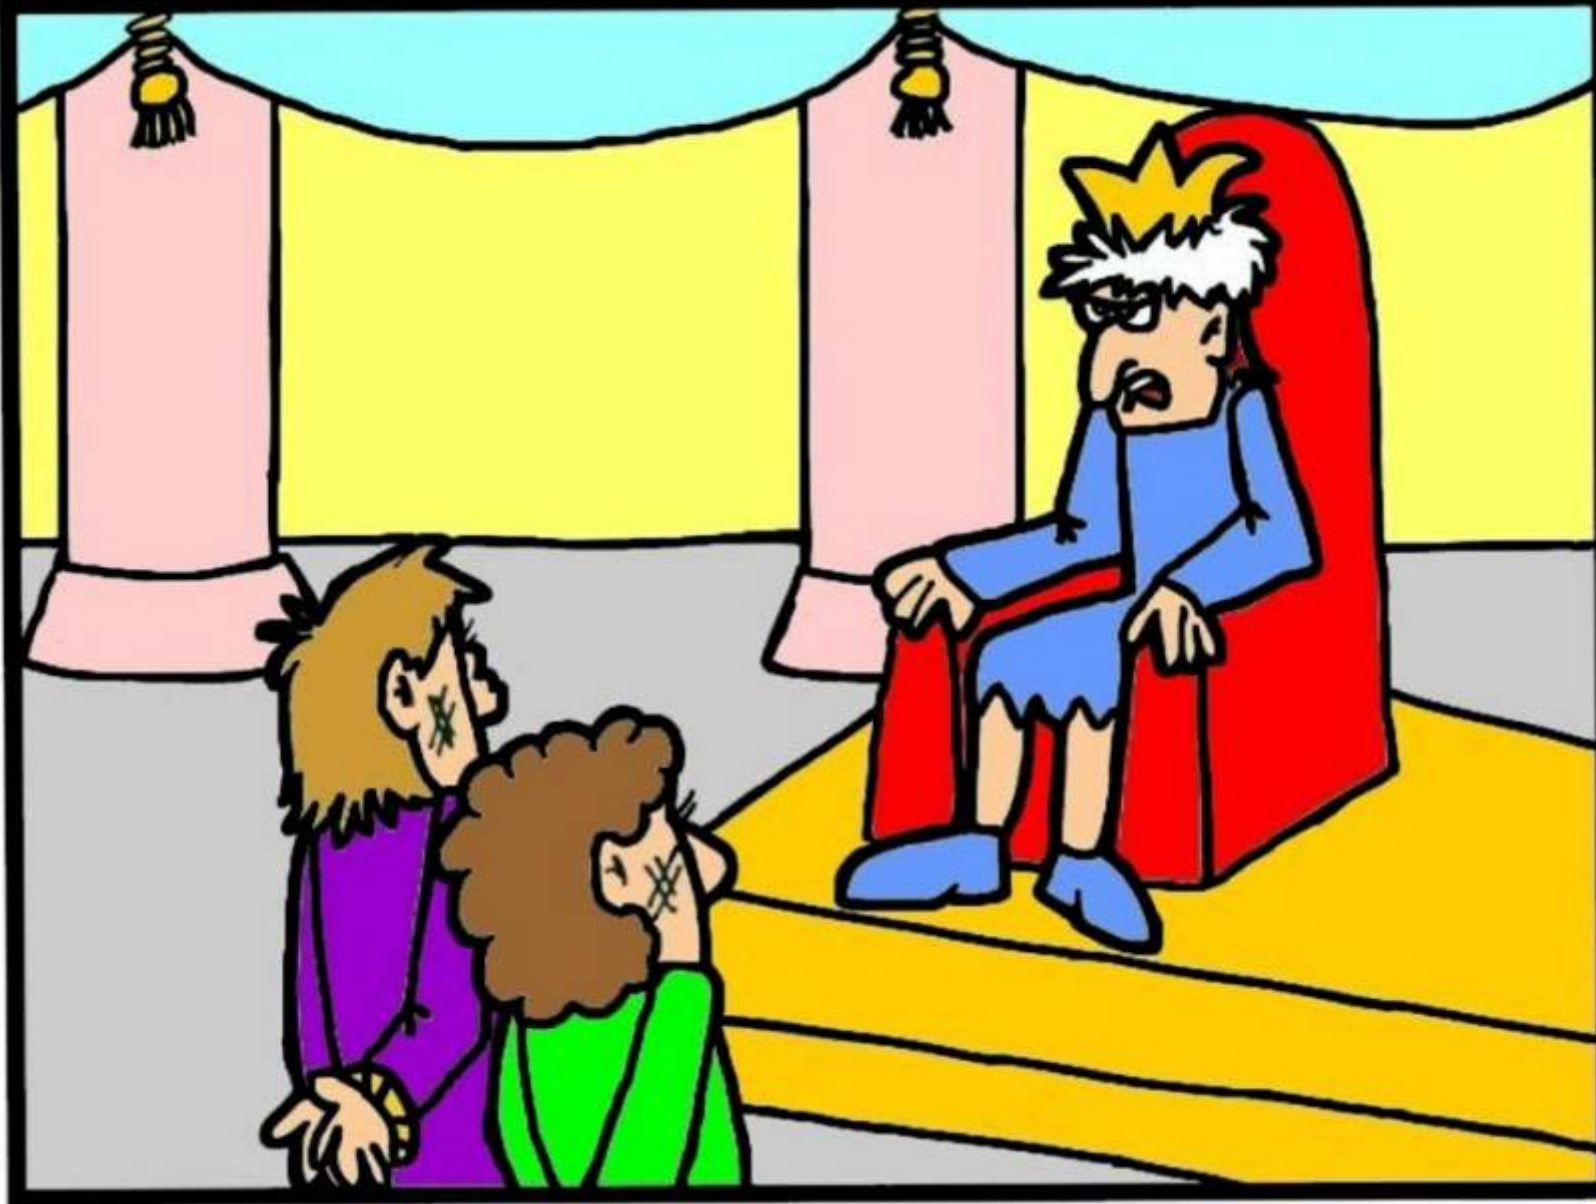

Then Jesus called his twelve disciples to him and gave them power to be the boss over all evil spirits, to send them out of people and to heal all kinds of diseases and sicknesses.

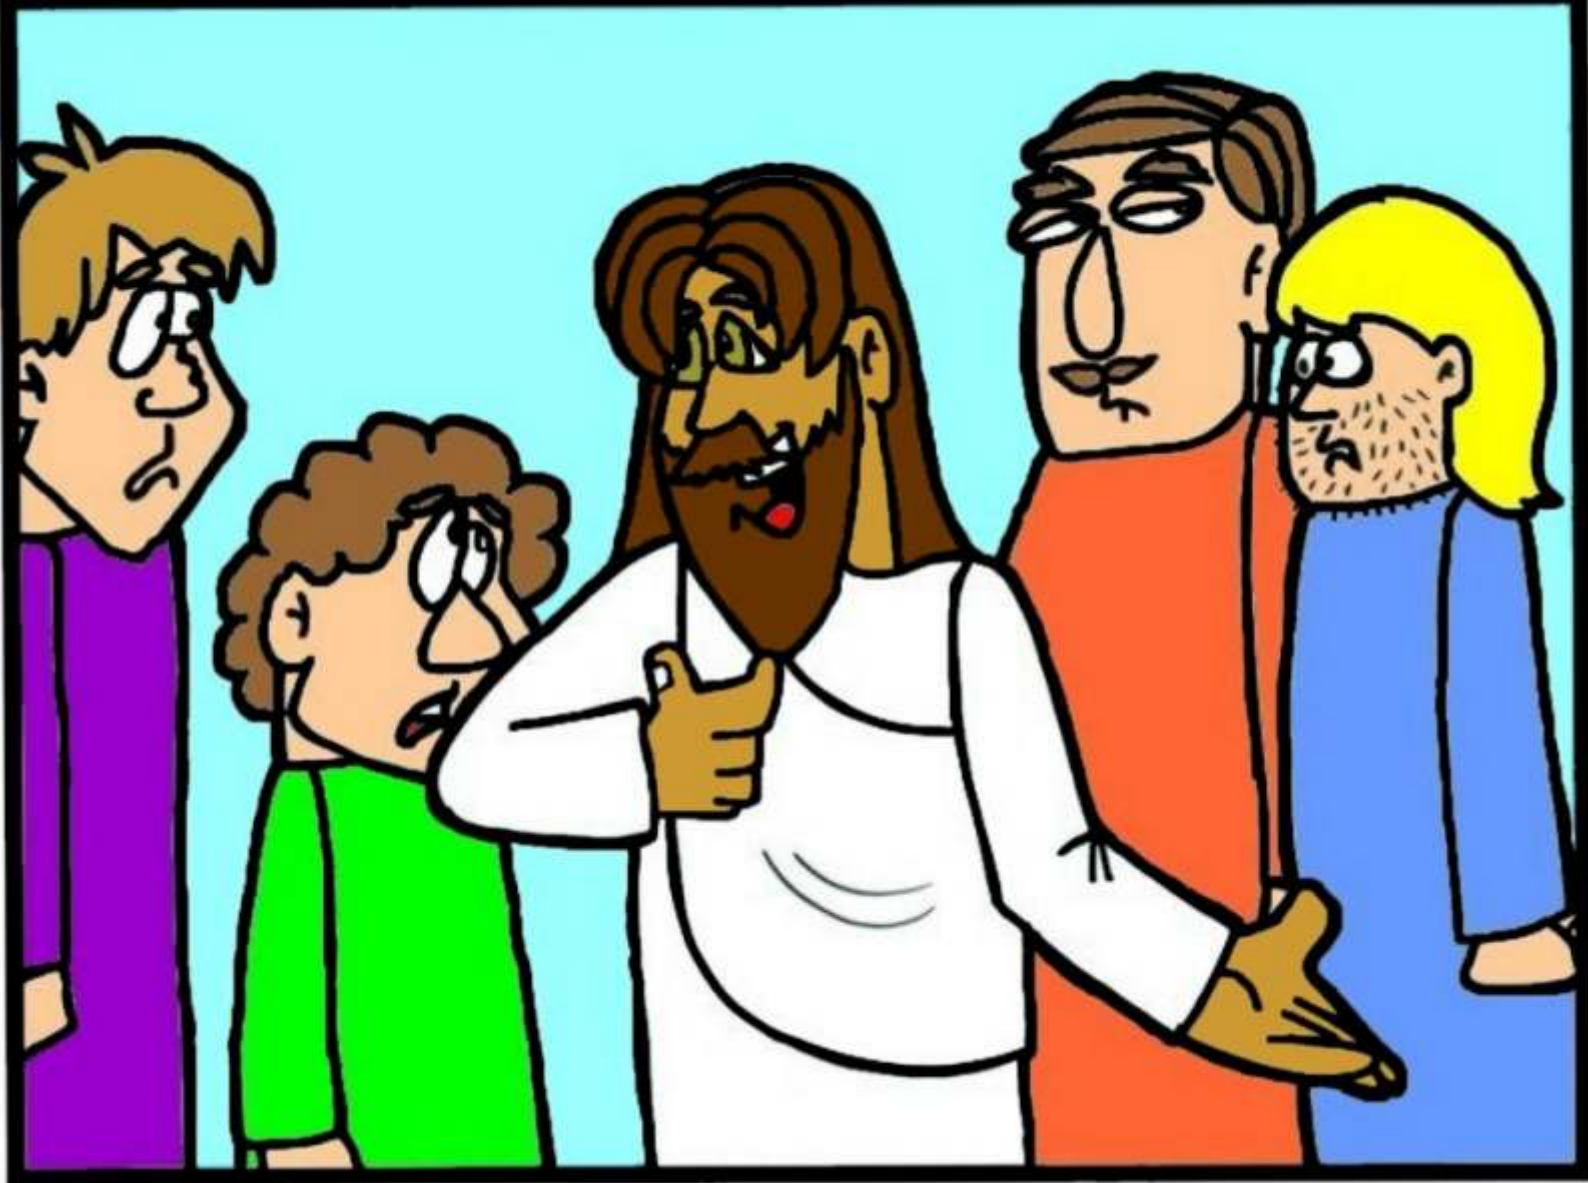

"Don't take money in your wallets, or extra clothes or food because a worker deserves the food he eats. Whenever you enter a town, search in it for people that are godly, who want to help. Stay at their house until you leave that town. Eat whatever they feed you.

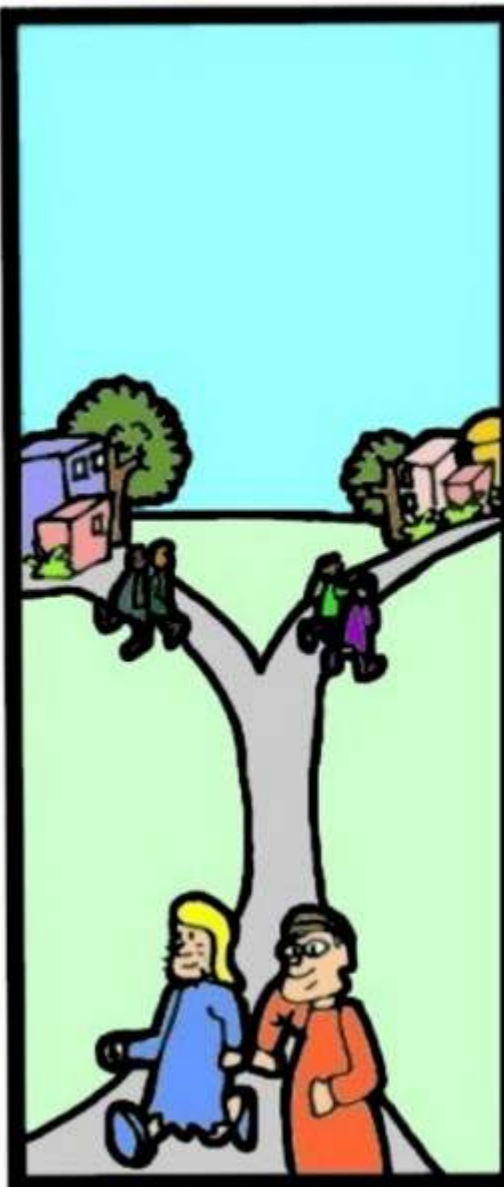

And whoever doesn't want to have you or listen to your words, when you leave their town, shake the dust off your feet as a message to them.

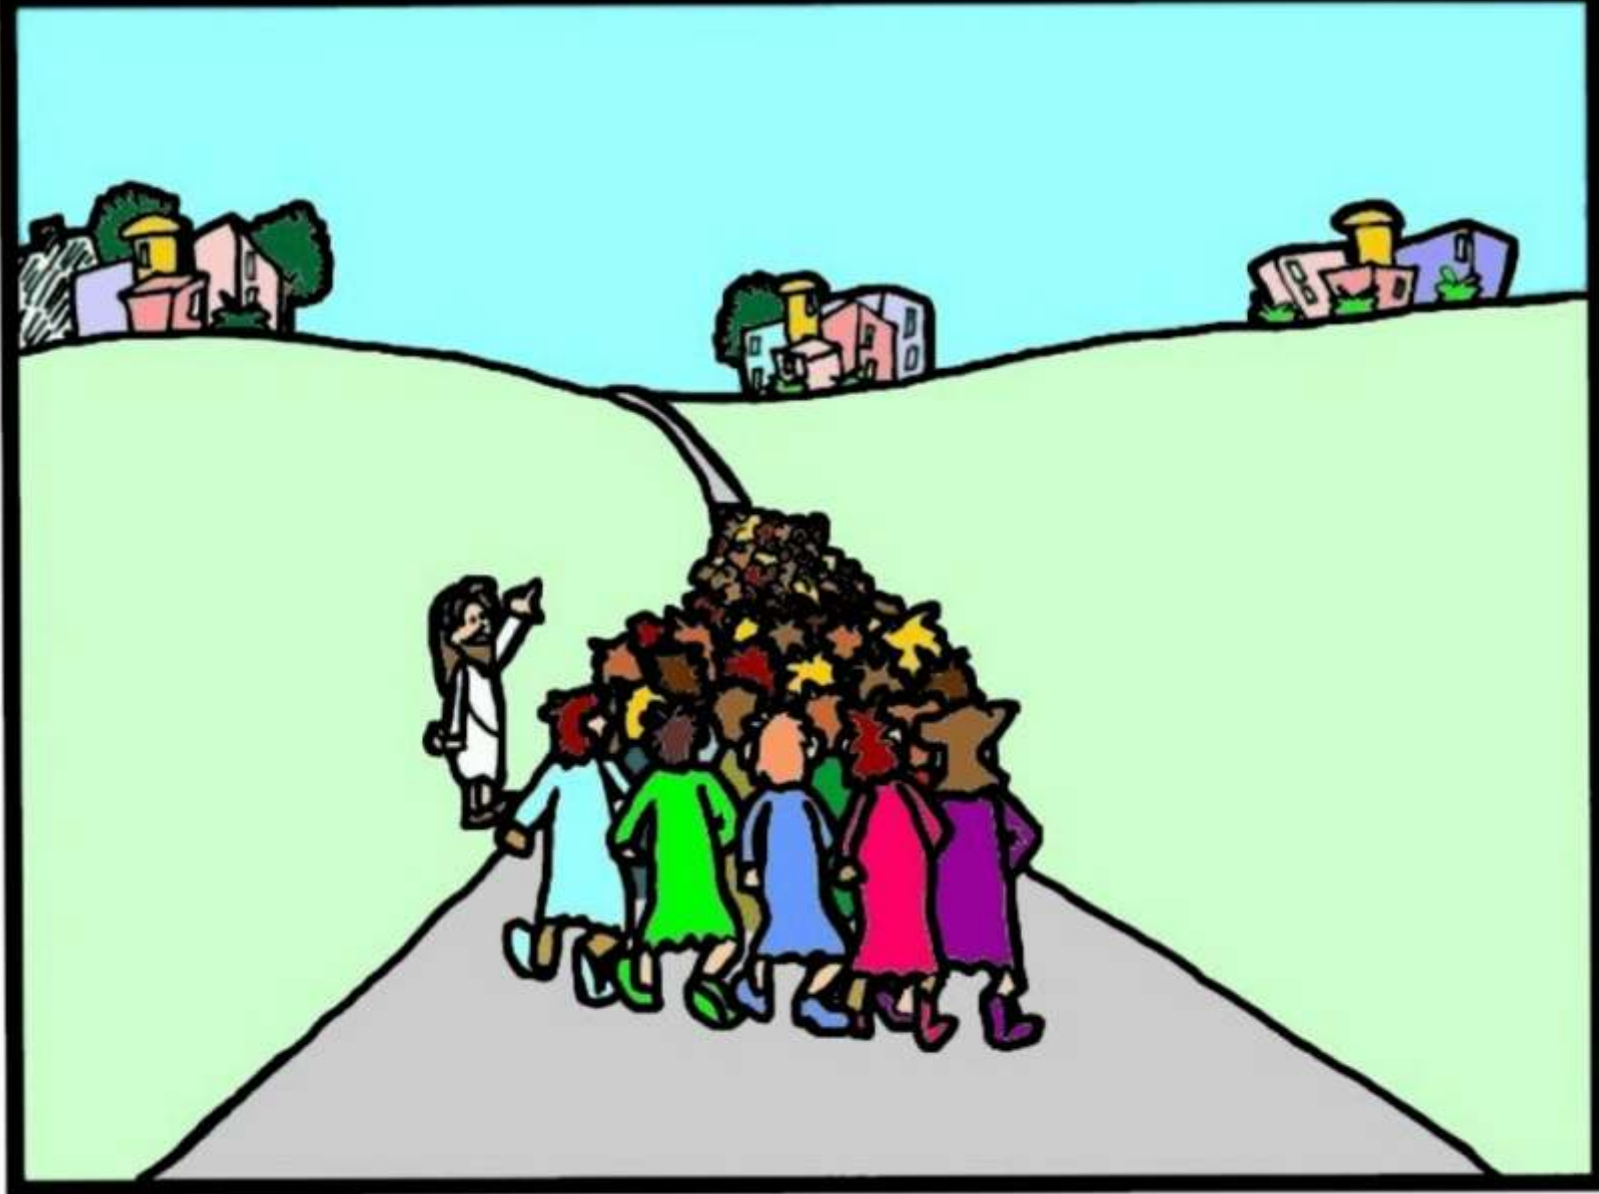

Some people will whip you and take you to their kings. Don't worry about what you'll say. The Holy Spirit will give you the right words when the time comes.

If they say bad things about me, they'll say bad things about you too. The things I tell you in secret, tell boldly to everyone. Don't be afraid of them. Even if they kill your body, they can't kill your soul.”

The disciples went out two by two and preached in the villages. They sent devils out of many people and they healed many.

Jesus also sent another 70 people into the villages, two by two, and he gave them the same commands as he did to the twelve disciples.

"Even the devils obey us when we command them to go in Jesus name!" said the excited disciples. "I saw Satan fall like lightening from heaven," answered Jesus. "Don't be happy because you are the boss over the devil but because your names are written in Heaven."

Lord, thank you for writing my name in your book in Heaven. Please use me to tell others about you.